r/MtF • 1y ago
JessicaPink703 Legal Researcher

A Legal Researcher's Guide to Trump Anti-Trans Executive Orders

Politics

PASSPORT BAN ILLEGALLY IN EFFECT (Update: Ban Overturned by Court), ACLU UPDATE: It has been confirmed that Passport gender changes are no longer being processed and of existing supporting documentation being submitted is being destroyed. As I've explained, this clearly violates the Administrative Procedure Act (along with a whole host of other laws and the constitution), potentially the former being an easy way to earn a quick injunction. Thanks to those of you who submitted my legal arguments with their intake form to them which I previously linked, the ACLU has filed suit seeking a preliminary injunction blocking the policy using my core arguments of the APA violation (detailed in my replies to your comments. proof via the Wayback Machine)! More below :3 https://www.aclu.org/press-releases/transgender-and-nonbinary-people-take-trump-to-court-over-passport-restrictions

SOCIAL SECURITY BAN ILLEGALLY CONFIRMED IN EFFECT, UPDATE #2: After 11 days, Social Security has finally caught up with the intimidation of the Trump administration (there are reports of top officials who aren't 100% immediately complying with everything Trump ordered all over the federal government being sent threatening emails to resign/retire, even when he doesn't have the authority to touch them) despite being an independent agency. I'm happy so many people were able to get theirs updated before it went into effect!! With the ACLU's lawsuit not including CRBA nor Social Security gender updates, I am working to get a challenge to court. Confirmation of their policy here: https://secure.ssa.gov/apps10/reference.nsf/links/01312025043159PM

With misinformation going wild on this forum and all over the internet, and me having spent the entire day trying to put out the fire, I am going to set the record straight for what Trump's anti-trans executive orders do and don't do:
[1] They DO kickoff a rulemaking process to ban Passport gender changes, but DON'T ban them right away: There will be at least a 60 day comment period before Biden's old rules fall. If you put in an expedited application for a gender change right now (even if you haven't finalized your name change yet for those in process, you can amend your name later but not your gender), you can still self select your new gender if you move NOW! Posting this at the end of inauguration day.

If you are able to amend the gender/sex on your Birth Certificate in your birth state and are not nonbinary, you are unaffected as you can apply anew (with surrendering any old Passports beforehand if applicable) with an amended Birth Certificate under both any new or old rules.

[2] They DON'T impact Social Security records: Social Security is an independent agency not subject to the whims of the President nor Executive Orders, ran by an official who can only be fired for cause and not for disobedience. Gender change bans on records are not happening right now.

[3] They DO setup effective permission for transphobic officials to try any action through lawsuits, threats, or the rulemaking process any other intimidation of the trans community or attempt to restrict our rights. The traditional institutional guardrails have been taken off. Of course, we will fight many of these in the courts and win (even if SCOTUS decides against protecting trans rights constitutionally) due to most of the big changes he wants needing legally to go through Congress.

[4] They DON'T affect name changes at all, these are managed by states and there is no proposal to change that or not recognize our name change orders.

[5] They DON'T change any rights your state gives to you (read up on your state constitutional and state civil rights laws), your federal Civil Rights protections (even if the executive branch refuses to enforce it, you can still take them to court), federal law, the constitution, or anything like that. This ONLY affects how the Executive Branch operates, not anything or anyone else.

[6] Finally, updated Passports with amended gender markers cannot be reversed due to being validly issued under different regulatory regimes. They normally last for ten years before expiring, we will outlast this clown.

I welcome your comments and questions below! <3

Edit: With the lack of genuine comments 24 hours later (almost entirely trolls) and hundreds of questions covering every little detail answered below, I am no longer monitoring replies on this post. For individuals with special circumstances I did not cover, please feel free to send me a Reddit DM.

1.7K 390 3 Share

156K views See More Insights

r/MtF

A Safe Have
This subredd specifically f feminine folk

Created Ju
Public

366K
Weekly visitors

USER FLAIR

Jessica
Legal F

R/MTF RULES

1 Respe
2 No ab
3 No Tr Blanc gatek
4 Tag N PORN
5 No so
6 No "X transp
7 Ask m anyth
8 Do no
9 No se

THANKS!

Thanks to u/S our banner!

Thanks to u/i

MODERATORS

u/Ceda
Bigend

u/AutoI

u/nikkit

156K views See More Insights

Join the conversation

Sort by: Best Search Comments

WallyBitesTheDust • 1y ago

I'm worried about my medicare and medicaid coverage for hormones and planned procedures.

379 Reply Award Share ···

JessicaPink703 OP • 1y ago
Legal Researcher

Medicaid is run state by state, with liberal states going to be unwilling to back down to a directive to cut funding while red states might depending on litigation scene. CMS, which controls traditional Medicare but not Medicare Advantage, is subject to the whim of the President and Executive Orders. Those on Advantage plans are privately insured and are subject to their insurer's restrictions.

137 Reply Award Share ···

Darkeldar1959 • 1y ago
Transgender

I'm glad my GRS is scheduled for tomorrow morning.

95 Reply Award Share ···

Lexi-Anna • 1y ago

Congratulations!!!! I hope you have the result you dreamed of and a fast and smooth recovery 💙💙💙

47 Reply Award Share ···

liquidlemon67 • 1y ago

Congratulations!!

15 Reply Award Share ···

MeatAndBourbon • 1y ago
Started 11-6-24. Thanks, election rage!

Congrats, I'm excited for you! Good luck with a speedy recovery. Discomfort is temporary, the rest of your life is forever 💜

8 Reply Award Share ···

Stock_Chicken_2832 • 1y ago

Congratulations!!

5 Reply Award Share ···

1 more reply

mechwarriorbuddah999 • 1y ago
It/They

As an XXY individual, I am concerned my medically required of I die HRT shots will be suspended as they are legally referred to as "gender affirming care." If this happens, I WILL die.

Im MOSTLY concerned Trump will make it so I cant use Medicare to pay for my shots, and theyre $2-4000 each, I get them biweekly.

10 Reply Award Share ···

JessicaPink703 OP • 1y ago
Legal Researcher

Legally, you are intersex and those who are are almost unilaterally exempt from bans like these. It's medically necessary even in the Republican handbook. Another thought as a backup, pills like the ones that can be ordered for cheap via CostPlusDrugs without insurance can keep you with a steady supply of HRT for cheap.

7 Reply Award Share ···

7 more replies

Nicole
u/nikor
Nikki, I Nikki (A u/drew
Glitter-
u/Head
Sylvia
u/Chipı
Assign
Michael u/Reve
a godd
u/Angr
Spiderq

Reddit Rules Priv
Your Privacy Choi
Reddit, Inc. © 202

7 more replies

3 more replies

3 more replies

[deleted] • 1y ago

FakingItSucessfully • 1y ago • Edited 1y ago

First thing, I agree with those who say hormones are more affordable than you'd think... if you can afford the doctor visit itself and get a prescription, you can also go to CostPlusDrugs.com which is an online pharmacy started by Mark Cuban that doesn't take insurance because it only provides generic drugs at cost. All the basic MTF hrt drugs are available... estradiol tablets, spironolactone, progesterone. And you can get them all for 20-30 dollars a month last I checked.

Second thing, my state (Ohio) currently already doesn't allow using medicaid for transgender things, it's been that way for years now. But it's just being ignored (in my case anyway), all my coverage has continued uninterrupted the whole time, nobody but me has even mentioned being aware of that law. All the hormone therapy drugs are also prescribed for other things, for cis people, so the only way this kind of ban is enforceable is if they get the doctors to participate in enforcing it, doctors have to willingly refuse to use medicaid for trans people, otherwise the government wouldn't even find out. So everybody just stay calm about that part and hope that whoever you work with is willing to look the other way. If they aren't then do some shopping around to hopefully find a more supportive clinic.

ETA:

Spironolactone is primarily used for blood pressure in cis people

Estradiol is prescribed for menopause HRT in cis women

Progesterone is used as birth control in cis women

so to put it more clearly, any doctor can charge these meds to medicaid and the only way for medicaid or the government either one to know it's for a trans person is if the doctor or pharmacist voluntarily gives them that info, or refuse to charge the meds to medicaid.

10 Reply Award Share ···

JessicaPink703 OP • 1y ago
Legal Researcher

Yes, so glad someone else knows about this amazing service! :D

4 Reply Award Share ···

2 more replies

CatIsOnMyKeyboard • 1y ago

Same, only reason I was able to start transitioning was because of Medicaid. And now, just as I get close to being able to schedule bottom surgery, they're probably going to take it away.

My bottom dysphoria has only gotten worse with time and I've already been pushed to the point of near constant suicidal ideation. I can't stand living without the surgery any longer. No amount of therapy can help that. I feel like a fucking husk.

The only reasons I have for not doing it at this point are spite, given I'd just become another statistic the right wing can weaponize against us, and my partner. I can't stand the thought of hurting them like that and leaving them to deal with everything happening alone.

16 Reply Award Share ···

JessicaPink703 OP • 1y ago
Legal Researcher

Medicaid is ran state-by-state, not by the federal government alone. Blue states will protect your right to have it pay for your surgery through litigation (since this is something Congress would have to do), the situation in red states is a bit of an unknown as this point of time (likely to be determined in the courts).

6 Reply Award Share ···

2 more replies

aphroditex • 1y ago
sought a deity. became a deity. killed that deity.

Hormones are very cheap, and grey market options are just as valid as ex.

There are multiple subs that specialize in discussing grey market options like transDIY.

6 Reply Award Share ···

3 more replies

[deleted] • 1y ago

Issue: the webpage on the actual government site has taken down the page on updating the gender marker on your passport

52 Reply Award Share ···

JessicaPink703 OP • 1y ago
Legal Researcher

The Executive Order told agencies to take down any pages "promoting gender transition", the page is available via Internet Archives and they need to go through the proper process to actually implement the new policy which will take time.

36 Reply Award Share ···

Zealousideal-Bee-731 • 1y ago

damn sis you're back, respect

getting my passport renewed today thx to you do u know if i have to match my name to whats on file with the ssa. i wanna keep my deadname — make that renewal as easy as possible and not out myself to any losers (ie who may "lose" my passport, i'm unaware the term has other meanings...)

14 Reply Award Share ···

5 more replies

16 more replies

ObstructedVisionary • 1y ago

I wish I'd seen this. I cracked completely in october and I only refrained from changing my legal docs until harris won bc I assumed the trump admin might target me or make me undo everything, or make ot harder to leave the country

144 Reply Award Share ···

JessicaPink703 OP • 1y ago
Legal Researcher

It's not too late, you still have the 60 day public comment period before Biden's rules are gone. Move now! <3

100 Reply Award Share ···

Gullible-Grass-5211 • 1y ago • Edited 1y ago
trans

Thank you for this post. I just started my transition in September... I was hoping to do this in 2 years not 4 months... but we can't count on things getting better during his presidency... I'll take the leap. I'm just worried it won't be enough.

31 Reply Award Share ···

14 more replies

Ashliest-Ashley • 1y ago
Transgender

Depending in where you are from, name changes can be relatively fast. I had my name legally changed in NY state (granted, this varies by literally area codes) in less than a week.

It's doable.

14 Reply Award Share ···

Hope-n-some-CH4NGE • 1y ago

Yea... I also had my name changed in NY state (not NYC) and it took roughly 2.5 months. This is definitely a ymmv thing

9 Reply Award Share ···

2 more replies

Vermbraunt • 1y ago
Trans Homosexual

As a kiwi trans girl I'm so sorry for you trans girls up in the states. I love you all and stay strong and fight hard.

74 Reply Award Share ···

Gullible-Grass-5211 • 1y ago
trans 🏳️‍⚧️

❤️

12 Reply Award Share ···

alvysaurus • 1y ago • Edited 1y ago

Thank you for this! I had no idea the Social Security admin was outside of the power of executive orders. That's awesome news, I was afraid that we'd have to spend time writing to governors to ask them to update their policies to stop checking with them before issuing updated IDs. Can you expand on why the SSA is outside of executive orders, or direct me to something I can read about this? Doing a little searching myself has lead me to seeing that they have a new acting Commissioner and that they obeyed an EO from Biden to make it easier to get benefits. EDIT: I found information about it's founding. I'm guessing the Commissioner has voluntarily followed the EOs in the past? Unfortunately there's a new acting one as of today, so I expect the rules update will follow.

I am wondering if you know how bathrooms in Federal buildings and companies with Federal contracts will impact those of us with updated Gender markers on state and federal IDs. I've been getting mixed signals so have been assuming the worst. Thanks again!

58 Reply Award Share ···

JessicaPink703 OP • 1y ago
Legal Researcher

Social Security being an independent government agency has a lot to do with the Social Security Act mandating the Commissioner (head of the agency) can only be fired for cause and not the whim of the President. Executive Orders are limited by that act to pretty much just national security matters, as it is supposed to protect the SSA's independence to run the fund and program independently.

As for Trump's Anti-Trans Executive Order today, it is going to vary by agency for bathrooms (new gender marker changes on federal register are just banned immediately since there was no federal rule). There is no language mandating it in his orders as a policy directive, but vague complaints about the importance of single sex spaces instead. It will be up to each department head, with review from the courts (multiple circuits say trans people in gov bathrooms is protected by the Civil Rights Act/Constitutionally so legal battles likely incoming).

41 Reply Award Share ···

alvysaurus • 1y ago

Thanks for this. I'm hoping the legal battles go well for us, and we get lucky with some of the departments heads.

7 Reply Award Share ···

2 more replies

Polibiux • 1y ago

I appreciate a legal expert's explanation here. This elevates some of my concerns, though I'm scared it won't matter with a criminal scotus.

23 Reply Award Share ···

JessicaPink703 OP • 1y ago
Legal Researcher

The point of what I'm doing here is just to buy time, it won't get to SCOTUS right away. My hope is most Trans Americans can get their documents up to date before the new rules go into effect and they have a chance down the line to rule them constitutional. Another President will eventually come.

11 Reply Award Share ···

1 more reply

corncrakey • 1y ago • Edited 1y ago
Mimi | 32 | She/her | HRT - 3/24/2021

Thank you for this 💜

A couple questions - I'm applying for my first passport as an adult (as in, I had one when I was 14 that has since expired)

1. The application asks if I've ever been issued a passport before. I have, but the only subsequent information I can provide about it is the name that was printed on it. Is that okay?
2. I know I need to provide my birth certificate as proof of citizenship. While I've legally changed my name/updated it with social security, I still haven't amended my birth certificate. Would I be okay if I brought my birth certificate and a court order of name change? Or does my birth certificate need to be updated too?

20 Reply Award Share ···

AndWinterCame • 1y ago

Just went and applied for a passport in IL. I'm in the same situation as you

1. yes, they just had me put a question mark in the field about when it was issued.
2. bring both birth certificate and name change. They honored that in my case.

Do it! 💜

7 Reply Award Share ···

3 more replies

JessicaPink703 OP • 1y ago
Legal Researcher

1. If it was issued originally before you were 18, it expired in 5 years. After 18, ten years. If it is expired, go ahead and just apply anew like you would for the first time. If not, try filling out the lost Passport form online with the limited information you know first.
2. If you are in a state that allows gender marker changes on Birth Certificates, the new rules won't affect you if you just wait to apply with your amended Birth Certificate with your new name and gender on it. Otherwise, get your Passport with your old name but new gender on it now, you can then for free within one year once you get your name change order amend the name.

6 Reply Award Share ···

5 more replies

cocainagrif • 1y ago

my BC is not changed and I successfully used a DS82 for renewal with my court order. you can say you lost your passport.

3 Reply Award Share ···

Mtsukino • 1y ago
Trans Bisexual

It strictly says on a DS82 that if your passport is lost, you need to use a DS11

3 Reply Award Share ···

IShallWearMidnight • 1y ago

Thank you so much for this. I feared I fucked up bad by procrastinating my passport. I needed someone level headed and knowledgeable to sort me out. And now I can be level headed and knowledgeable to others. Much appreciated!

22 Reply Award Share ···

Petrychorr • 1y ago • Edited 1y ago

I need to update mine as well, and it looks like the paperwork on the website allows for an amending of existing information

Maybe that's the way to do it now?

Maybe that's the way to do it now?

6 Reply Award Share ···

[deleted] • 1y ago

I do hope a lot of this is true. I do have a question though, should we be concerned about REAL ID affecting the ability to change gender markers on Driver's Licenses?

25 Reply Award Share ···

[deleted] • 1y ago • Edited 8mo ago

abounding slim grab treatment deer knee upbeat capable jeans thumb

This post was mass deleted and anonymized with Redact

13 Reply Award Share ···

quidnuncius • 1y ago

I had to renew my driver's license and make it RealID compliant - I used my passport for ID, which still had my birth sex listed, but was able to change gender on my driver's license. The name had to match exactly (so they had to add my middle name to my driver's license, which I didn't really want) but the gender didn't have to match.
It might vary with state, though - my state allows gender change on DLs, by request.

5 Reply Award Share ···

1 more reply

JessicaPink703 OP • 1y ago
Legal Researcher

The federal government could try issuing a regulation saying gender in REAL ID only means birth sex, but that's not going to fly with blue states or the courts without an act of Congress. I'm not worried.

8 Reply Award Share ···

2 more replies

1 more reply

Massive_Cup8721 • 1y ago

so dose this affect medicaid in any since, btw I live in co idk if that effects anything

10 Reply Award Share ···

JessicaPink703 OP • 1y ago
Legal Researcher

You should be fine, your state will fight for you against interference with it being a state run program! <3

5 Reply Award Share ···

RightWordsMissing • 1y ago
21 MtF, Pansexual

I live abroad and have preexisting legal documents in transphobic countries to which I intend to return already in my AGAB (studies). I fear I cannot safely travel on a passport that shows a sex different than the ones I have there.

Am I in danger if I don't update? I'm rather scared.

Furthermore, can I claim to be a cis woman and ask to have my passport "fixed" by showing a correct-gender birth certificate? I was born in a VERY blue state.

8 Reply Award Share ···

JessicaPink703 OP • 1y ago
Legal Researcher

Under the new rules, if you surrender your Passport and then apply anew, you can use your amended Birth Certificate with your corrected name and gender on it to get around them. Though you may have to spend some time in the US.

5 Reply Award Share ···

9 more replies

cocainagrif • 1y ago

it sucks that I was born in Mississippi. even though I live in a better state now, I can't get my birth certificate changed without proof of surgery, and I don't have that.

8 Reply Award Share ···

3 more replies

[deleted] • 1y ago

While the passport gender change webpage is now inactive, you can still submit your forms for changing your gender marker! Follow the steps at the GLAD Law website: https://www.glad.org/transgender-id-project-updating-your-passport/

I did this this morning and went to my local post office to ship it off.

8 Reply 1 Share ···

JessicaPink703 OP • 1y ago
Legal Researcher

Thank you for putting this here, also remember the internet achieves are an amazing source! :3

3 Reply Award Share ···

Ferretomen • 1y ago
White coats and lavender nails

Thank you for this. I updated my passport leading up to the election out of an abundance of (apparently unfortunately correct) caution over the outcome. Hopefully you're correct they'll be unable to retroactively invalidate my gender on it.

So that'll be an issue for 10 years in the future me!

15 Reply Award Share ···

farkakter • 1y ago

how long do you think we realistically have to change our gender marker on our passports? i'm in college and i have the forms ready to get a passport but i have to get my birth certificate from my parents still and i'm worried that i won't be able to do so in time

7 Reply Award Share ···

daniel22457 • 1y ago

60 days before the order applies and that's assuming there's no legal challenge to hold it up longer.

4 Reply Award Share ···

JessicaPink703 OP • 1y ago • Edited 1y ago
Legal Researcher

A little bit of context to my Emergency Update:

At this time, enforcement for non-binary people on this is clear. Enforcement mechanisms for binary trans people are unclear, this is coming from the Press Secretary and not the State Department that actually manages Passports and would be responsible for regulations and enforcement. We are ultimately waiting to see what the new administrative rules are going to be. Might be a bit tricky and unlikely to reverse gender changes already granted upon renewal, as they will have already been processed for the change in the case file (and being unable to tell errors vs trans people easily). Wouldn't be surprised if this transphobe who doesn't work for the Department of State is speaking out of her butt not knowing how or if that part will be implemented.

Remember too, those who can amend their Birth Certificate's sex/gender can surrender their old Passport and apply anew with their corrected certificate. Those who can't are the ones who need to be potentially worried if it expires during Trump's term.

7 Reply Award Share ···

Elyssana • 1y ago

Elyssana • 1y ago

How much does it cost to get a passport?

5 Reply Award Share ···

PoorlyDressedDandy • 1y ago

I just got mine a month or two ago, it was around $160. Part to the Fed, part to my city/county.

6 Reply Award Share ···

1 more reply

gothicshark • 1y ago
Transgender Woman over 50

What about TSA check points when leaving the country.

5 Reply Award Share ···

JessicaPink703 OP • 1y ago
Legal Researcher

Get TSA Precheck to protect yourself, new scanners rolling out nationwide are gender neutral.

6 Reply Award Share ···

Toggy_ZU • 1y ago
NB MtF

I just renewed my passport without updating my gender marker specifically because I haven't started physically transitioning yet. I won't feel comfortable trying to pass for femme until I've been on HRT for a bit. I really don't think updating the gender marker on my passport is a good idea before the ban goes into effect so I'm not sure what to do.

5 Reply Award Share ···

JessicaPink703 OP • 1y ago
Legal Researcher

Update your gender marker anyway, you can always use your state issued Photo ID or Driver's License with a male gender marker on it for domestic purposes in the mean time.

3 Reply Award Share ···

1 more reply

chillfem • 1y ago

Are the TSA going to become gender police at airports? And I feel there will be civil outrage throwing fully post op cis passing vagina having trans women into mens prisons.. I don't think the majority of society would agree with that.

14 Reply Award Share ···

[deleted] • 1y ago

TSKrista • 1y ago
Trans Bi : HRT Jan 21 : she/her : also "old"

I personally know a TSA supervisor. Although there can be agents being a-holes, by and large, the agency doesn't like awkward BS.

They really are just worried about following rules about flight safety and pumping people through the screening as quickly as possible.

I've known them decades and visited with them recently post transition and we had some great conversation. While I can't say I'm "not worried" going through TSA, my general anxiety isn't increased by stumpy and his balderdash.

11 Reply Award Share ···

daniel22457 • 1y ago

That'd be more work for them so no

3 Reply Award Share ···

1 more reply

FHeadFHead • 1y ago
Transgender

I'm going through the green card process here! Do you know if the comments on passports (60 days etc) apply also to new green cards?

4 Reply Award Share ···

4 more replies

NyteShark • 1y ago

Question:

I have all my legal transition stuff sorted out correctly except for my passport. I just hadn't gotten around to it. If I submit the appropriate paperwork ASAP could I get that corrected successfully still?

4 Reply Award Share ···

5 more replies

A-passing-thot • 1y ago

> [2] They DON'T impact Social Security records: Social Security is an independent agency not subject to the whims of the President nor Executive Orders, ran by an official who can only be fired for cause and not for disobedience.

Can you clarify what you mean? Isn't SSA ran by a commissioner appointed by the president? And Trump appointed someone (Frank Bisignano) to that role.

Couldn't they use SSA records (or passport records) to identify anyone who's had their gender markers changed in the past?

4 Reply Award Share ···

JessicaPink703 OP • 1y ago
Legal Researcher

The SSA Commissioner can only be fired for cause and the agency cannot generally be bound by executive orders. Trump does appoint them, and they theoretically could roll things back, but I find it unlikely as it would undermine the agency's independence.

Past SSA records might be in the casefile, but going through each and every casefile in the US would be a logistical nightmare. Highly unlikely they will be touched.

3 Reply Award Share ···

mayoito • 1y ago

> Past SSA records might be in the casefile, but going through each and every casefile in the US would be a logistical nightmare. Highly unlikely they will be touched.

whats a casefile?

and why wouldnt they use it??

3 Reply Award Share ···

A-passing-thot • 1y ago

Casefile would refer to the individuals' records. While there is physical storage of paper documents somewhere, most records are stored in databases nowadays.

If the data were stored in a format where you could only look up one individuals' data at a time, eg, through typical user-interfaces that a regular worker might use to amend the records, it would be prohibitively expensive and basically impossible.

But that is a wildly inefficient way to store that type of data. Nowadays, data is stored in relational databases, ie, sets of tables with rows and columns that are "connected" to each other by an identifier, eg, SSN. So there might be a SS payment history table, a table with tax history, a table with contact information, a change log table, and so on. You can "join" these tables together into a custom table using SQL or another query language to pull the specific information you want.

Doing so would be extremely easy. The main hiccup would be that bureaucratic hurdles, identifying who has the authority to authorize that type of query (ie, that's protected/sensitive info, the workers at the local SSA office could not do that), and so on. But essentially anyone who has the permissions to query their database could pull those records in a few minutes.

4 Reply Award Share ···

3 more replies

1 more reply

1 more reply

HotPinkMonolith23 • 1y ago

tytyty there is so much hysteria online it's hard to tell what is actually happening

4 Reply Award Share ···

collapsing_souffle • 1y ago
Trans Bisexual

What if I changed my name and gender previously but didn't finish updating it in a couple of places? Specifically with the military for veterans benefits. Is it too late to go to a deers office and do this?

4 Reply Award Share ···

JessicaPink703 OP • 1y ago
Legal Researcher

Move now, get this done ASAP!

4 Reply Award Share ···

NorCalFrances • 1y ago

Passports can be revoked by the federal government for "fraudulent activity", a descriptor they've already used to describe us.

4 Reply Award Share ···

3 more replies

dertechie • 1y ago

Oh good. I knew sometime would put something like this up; I'm not reading through 200 EOs for my own sanity.

6 Reply Award Share ···

JessicaPink703 OP • 1y ago
Legal Researcher

I feel your pain :P

3 Reply Award Share ···

Zealousideal_Top_361 • 1y ago

Do the passport changes apply for state I.D / driver's license? What about if you don't have a passport yet so you'd be getting your first one?

3 Reply Award Share ···

julifun • 1y ago
Transgender

As the OP said.. get a passport ASAP with self-selected gender, regardless of whether your name is changed or not.

None of this affects state anything.. so that's state IDs, birth certificates, etc. Your state laws are in control there. That said.. Real ID might come into play for gender changes on compliant state IDs? We don't know yet..

5 Reply Award Share ···

1 more reply

queenparity • 1y ago
Amber | 20 | HRT 10/4/23 | Orchi 8/8/24 | Vag ???

Just to make sure I understand, if I update my birth certificate's sex, I can still update my passport to the correct sex even after these rules go into place?

3 Reply Award Share ...

daniel22457 • 1y ago

Technically no but there would be little they could do to actually block it applied to the real world

4 Reply Award Share ...

2 more replies

[deleted] • 1y ago

Accomplished-Cat6803 • 1y ago

This is the part were we start the civil disobedience

3 Reply Award Share ...

Onceinabluemew • 1y ago

I had a passport when I was a minor, which has my old gender marker on it. Is that going to be an issue of making it trackable if I get a new one with my updated marker? Last thing I want is to be put on a quick list for them.

The other issue is, I just went to try to schedule an appointment to get a passport on the USPS site and it said the service wasn't available.

3 Reply Award Share ...

mayoito • 1y ago

> Last thing I want is to be put on a quick list for them.

they ask for prev names. maybe just dont tell them lol

3 Reply Award Share ...

1 more reply

Jackie_Yasha • 1y ago

Can I change my passports sex without changing my birth certificate? Texas has banned changing your birth certificate sex. I do have a medical letter and a (unsigned) legal order typed up

3 Reply Award Share ...

CapnCallipygous • 1y ago
Trans She/Her

Yes, I updated my passport a year or two ago without changing my birth certificate. If I recall correctly, the only hurdle at the time was the passport needs to match the social security card.

4 Reply Award Share ...

Jackie_Yasha • 1y ago

I'll do that first then. Luckily it only takes 14 days to receive it and then I'll renew my passport right after that

3 Reply Award Share ...

[deleted] • 1y ago

RedFumingNitricAcid • 1y ago

Is there still a way to still change gender markers on passports? The page on the DHS website is already gone.

3 Reply Award Share ···

2 more replies

ArmenTamzarien • 1y ago

"[6] Finally, updated Passports with amended gender markers cannot be reversed due to being validly issued under different regulatory regimes. They normally last for ten years before expiring, we will outlast this clown."

Does this mean that if my son has a passport with "X" as his gender marker, it remains valid until expiration? We are spiraling over here as we had plans to travel out of the country this summer.

3 Reply Award Share ···

1 more reply

justonecog • 1y ago

My own problem: I just need to update my photo after surgery, but don't want to lose my X gender marker.

I had my name and gender marker (X) changed on all documents last year (except birth certificate, TN so I could only update the name there), including passport. I'm in California.

Problem is, I had FFS back in September, and now that the changes are finally settling, my face does look quite a bit different (mostly just the chin, though), probably necessitating getting the photo updated, which I understand basically requires applying for a new passport under normal circumstances (rather than just a renewal).

We have a company trip out of the country coming up in a few months and they're pushing me to get everything updated ASAP, but I'm worried this will result in losing my X gender marker.

Two immigration attorneys for the company suggested reporting the passport as lost/destroyed in order to get a new one (which does appear to require a new photo).

Does this seem like sound advice? Would I still likely lose the X gender marker?

3 Reply Award Share ···

1 more reply

Pitiful_Tradition920 • 1y ago

They're already denying people. Just went to get an emergency passport and they said they weren't able to go by the biden policy anymore, they received instructions this week to follow the new policy. My gender marker is wrong now. I've already reached out to ACLU.

3 Reply Award Share ···

[deleted] • 1y ago • Edited 1y ago

Hi! I wanted to go back here to this point:

> If you are able to amend the gender/sex on your Birth Certificate in your birth state and are not nonbinary, you are unaffected as you can apply anew (with surrendering any old Passports beforehand if applicable) with an amended Birth Certificate under both any new or old rules.

While there isn't a documented case of this being tried yet with a changed BC, I just wanted to see your thoughts on this particular comment section on this post from someone who processes passports apparently.

They claim that the new application would just be linked to your old application anyway, so a gender marker wouldn't "change" despite it not being a renewal. Again, there isn't really a documented case of someone trying to change gender via a new application anyway, but I just wanted to see if you would agree with this?

Also I would 100% list on top of your post to not apply for gender changes ATM

3 Reply Award Share ···

GrimmPetite • 1y ago

I had a passport as a minor with the old gender marker that expired in 2017. All of my documents have been updated including birth certificate. Would I file a new application using the information that's on my BC or would that still count as a passport gender change?

3 Reply Award Share ···

sxdtrxnny • 1y ago

my friend is nonbinary and has a California id with the x marker, are they safe or will it have to be updated to be their birth sex?

2 Reply Award Share ···

Xunae • 1y ago
Transgender

Safe is gonna be hard to determine going forward, but this here doesn't affect state documents

3 Reply Award Share ···

3 more replies

MaybeAlice1 • 1y ago
Definitely Alice - MtF

I'm concerned because I have pending immigration paperwork to update my name/gender on green card, and also just the double whammy of being a trans immigrant. The last time I looked the site still listed a time to complete the update in the multiple years range.

All the rest of my docs, both in the US and home country are updated though. Ugh.

2 Reply Award Share ···

2 more replies

FullmetalScribe • 1y ago

Thank you for posting. You are awesome.

Related: Are there any changes at the federal level regarding birth certificate changes? I've already submitted mine but it is still processing. I figure it'd be state-specific but thought I might as well ask.

2 Reply Award Share ···

JessicaPink703 OP • 1y ago
Legal Researcher

Unless you were born out of the country, no. It is completely controlled by your birth state or territory.

3 Reply Award Share ···

Interesting_Sell2552 • 1y ago

I heard that he plans on cutting federal funding for hormones. Is that something in effect now or is that happening?

2 Reply Award Share ···

JessicaPink703 OP • 1y ago
Legal Researcher

Not in effect now, Medicaid is run by the states so he will struggle to hit that if at all with legal challenges. Traditional Medicare (not Advantage) may be affected.

3 Reply Award Share ···

Lily-Sayoko • 1y ago • Edited 3mo ago

elderly friendly humorous consider slim skirt bike divide oil rinse

This post was mass deleted and anonymized with Redact

2 Reply Award Share ···

1 more reply

AdResponsible9894 • 1y ago

We have any idea how this will affect transitioning military members?

2 Reply Award Share ···

2 more replies

mononoke_princessa • 1y ago • Edited 9mo ago

historical ripe longing shaggy encouraging dull upbeat makeshift fertile history

This post was mass deleted and anonymized with Redact

2 Reply Award Share ···

[deleted] • 1y ago

BlannaTorris • 1y ago

Do you have confirmation or primary source on the 30-60 day time period to renew a passport without being subject to this?

2 Reply Award Share ···

5 more replies

WD200019 • 1y ago • Edited 1y ago

Hi, thanks for this post. I have a situation hopefully someone here can help with.

So I live in Texas. Legal name and gender changes are banned. I did get a court ordered name and gender change (combined) in 2024 and I have certified copies of it. My birth certificate and drivers license still have my legal name.

I don't have a passport, but I'd like to get one with my new name and gender. I was sent this form with information on applying in person, and other comments here say I should pay extra to expedite the passport.

So here's my questions.

1. ~~From my understanding, it looks like in order to get an expedited passport (in the hopes it'll arrive before the new laws take effect), I need to have a flight scheduled very soon and bring my flight itinerary to the passport office. Is this true?~~ confirmed false
2. What dates are "too late" to start the passport process?
3. Since I already have a court ordered name and gender change, should I fill out the form I linked above with my chosen name and gender? There's an option on the form for "gender marker change", which I expect I'll need to check too.

If my plan is too wide eyed and naïve to work, someone please tell me. I appreciate any help!!

2 Reply Award Share ···

[deleted] • 1y ago

I went to the passport agency today. The person looked at my documents and made a point to ask “are you nervous because of the EO?” I nodded. They said “don’t worry, you’ll be fine”. Now I don’t know if that’s because I was only changing my name or if it was because of the 60 day period. Just wanted to post my experience for others to see.

2 Reply Award Share ···

Additional-Tax-5562 • 1y ago

I just mailed in my passport with a name and gender marker update not more than a month ago... what does that mean for me and my documents?

2 Reply Award Share ···

2 more replies

batfan1111 • 1y ago

Question: I'm a trans man with dual citizenship. My non-US country recognizes me as male, my passport from that country says M on it and everything. My US passport still says F because it was issued when I was a kid. Can my non-US passport help me change the sex mark on a new US passport? And if not, would the contradiction between the two passport cause any issues?

2 Reply Award Share ···

Cool_Key3077 • 1y ago

I can't change my birth certificate, will they force me to change my gender marker back and how will they do it?

I really don't want to have to call everyone and change it, it would be depressing. Don't know if I can as it may drive me over the edge.

2 Reply Award Share ···

Cool_Key3077 • 1y ago

This is regarding my passport, really depressed about it.

2 Reply Award Share ···

I_Love_Polar_Bears • 1y ago

I have every other piece of paperwork updated. My birth certificate, my ID, SSN, everything says "F".

But I used to have, and lost, a passport with "M" and my deadname.

Does this mean I should not apply for a new passport at this time? Because I would have to report my old name on the DS-11 and thus have a gender marker change, right?

2 Reply Award Share ···

jester32 • 1y ago
Transgender

For anyone wondering about the 60 day window like me, it seems to be confirmed here (in part 3) from the White House's own website:

https://www.whitehouse.gov/presidential-actions/2025/01/regulatory-freeze-pending-review/

Chat GPT simplified:

> Summary of Actions Ordered:

Approval Before Issuing Rules:

No executive department or agency can propose or issue any new rules unless the head of that department or agency (appointed after January 20, 2025) has reviewed and approved the rule. The department/agency head can delegate this review and approval power to someone else they appoint. The Director of the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) can make exceptions for rules that are needed quickly, such as emergency rules or those with legal deadlines. Withdraw Pending Rules:

Any rules that have already been sent to the Federal Register (but not yet published) must be pulled back for review and approval before being published, unless they fall under the exceptions mentioned above. Postpone Effective Dates:

For rules that have already been published in the Federal Register or are about to go into effect, consider postponing their start date for 60 days to allow time for review. During this 60-day period, the public may be invited to submit comments on the rule's facts, legal issues, and policies. If needed, additional time or further review may be considered after this period.

Review and Take Action:

After the 60-day review period, if a rule does not raise any significant issues, no further action is needed.

For rules that do raise significant issues, the agency will need to consult with the OMB Director and take further action. Follow Executive Orders on Regulations:

All agencies must continue to follow any existing executive orders related to how regulations are managed.

3 Reply Award Share ···

11 more replies

Guard_Lily • 1y ago

I was just about to put in my order for my passport so I can start moving to Canada, my birth certificate got changed years ago, do I have reason to worry? This shit is scaring me so bad

0 Reply Award Share ···

MostlyZoey_ • 1y ago
On Estrogen 3/13/2024

What do you think will happen with bathrooms? It mentioned sex segregated spaces remaining segregated. Does this mean we could actually be legally punished if we go into our preferred bathroom and get clocked? Or if we go into our AGAB bathroom and pass?

1 Reply Award Share ···

1 more reply

robotortoise • 1y ago
Trans woman

Thank you.

1 Reply Award Share ···

inorganicangelrosiel • 1y ago
Trans Bisexual

Maybe because it's late, or maybe because I'm an idiot, but I didn't follows this part:

I currently have the gender marker on my birth certificate corrected. In fact, the only thing that still uses my dead name is my diplomas because fuck them.

So because of that, I'm not in a race to get a passport?

1 Reply Award Share ···

JessicaPink703 OP • 1y ago
Legal Researcher

For your high school to update your transcripts:

https://legacy.lambdalegal.org/publications/fs_2014_ferpa-faq

For the Birth Certificate, if you do not currently have a Passport, you are not in a rush. If you currently have one to avoid needing to surrender it, renewing now is best.

2 Reply Award Share ···

1 more reply

evelyn_labrie • 1y ago
Trans Heterosexual

my name change isn't until the 31st but i'll try to get my passport changed immediately

1 Reply Award Share ···

slaybg223 • 1y ago

What does this mean about accessing hormones? Will my provider be able to continue my prescription?

1 Reply Award Share ···

JessicaPink703 OP • 1y ago
Legal Researcher

Your HRT shouldn't be impacted.

3 Reply Award Share ···

daniel22457 • 1y ago

So what if we updated the gender marker and then want to change the name I'm just terrified that in order for the name change to go through I'm going to have to change the marker back. And I know that having a different name than your other IDs is a whole other layer of difficulty.

1 Reply Award Share ···

JessicaPink703 OP • 1y ago
Legal Researcher

It's unlikely they'd change it back once the change has been finalized with how they currently process gender changes (you effectively have to request it).

2 Reply Award Share ···

1 more reply

reverend-smith • 1y ago

I have updated everything but my birth certificate (which I can't do because it's from Tennessee); if I have never had a passport do I need to do an expedited order to get one now, or just go ahead in general?

1 Reply Award Share ···

JessicaPink703 OP • 1y ago
Legal Researcher

Get it expedited now!

1 Reply Award Share ···

KissesPaige • 1y ago

My name change is taking a while because PA is slow, my marker on passport is updated but I worry I won't be able to update my name when it is changed

1 Reply Award Share ···

teresajewdice • 1y ago

How would this affect foreigners visiting the US for tourism or business? If you changed your sex on your passport in your home country and wanted to enter the US, could you be denied entry on the basis of having a 'fraudulent' passport if the customs agent felt so that day? Could you be detained?

1 Reply Award Share ···

JessicaPink703 OP • 1y ago
Legal Researcher

If you have a binary gender marker, no. Some speculate those with an 'X' gender marker could be turned around at the gate on a plane back, but that as of now is just speculation of a worse case scenario.

3 Reply Award Share ···

iamsiobhan • 1y ago
Transgender

Thank you for the information.

1 Reply Award Share ···

LadyTaratron • 1y ago

Doesn't section 5 include most employers as most are covered under the Civil Rights Act of 1964? My amateur read of that section is essentially that use of a bathroom considered "wrong" by the act should be pursued legally by the Attorney General, the Secretary of Labor, the General Counsel and Chair of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

1 Reply Award Share ···

JessicaPink703 OP • 1y ago
Legal Researcher

That has never been how the act has been interpreted by the federal circuit courts, that is a new reading that just came out of conservative thinktanks in the last year or two.

2 Reply Award Share ···

2 more replies

[deleted] • 1y ago

Okayyyy this is the info I needed

1 Reply Award Share ···

undercoverTran • 1y ago

Hi, I'm in a bit of a predicament.

I was born overseas to a military father, and had a certificate of report of birth issued by the state department. I think it's called a CRBA now.

Changing it might no longer be possible, and I'm kinda afraid to do it because it involves sending away any current physical birth certificate copies I might have.

I do have my state ID and passport changed already though.

Fuck, what should I do?

1 Reply Award Share ···

2 more replies

solaria21 • 1y ago
Transgender - Jennifer

Is there a source on 6? I have an international trip planned in May with an X passport

1 Reply Award Share ···

1 more reply

0ppositeTrash • 1y ago
Raeina (She/They)

Thank you for making this post. I wish we could pin this to the front page, because a lot of people need this right now.

1 Reply Award Share ···

No_Action_1561 • 1y ago

Just

💜

Ty for doing this

1 Reply Award Share ···

GwendolinAstrid • 1y ago

So I have my name change done and my gender marker on my driver's license done, but not my passport, birth certificate, or social security; am I boned?

1 Reply Award Share ···

1 more reply

Roxcha • 1y ago
Trans Homosexual

For 5, correct me if I'm wrong, but it might change in the future if the supreme court takes it on itself to change it, right ? It's possible that they decide it's no longer up to state government but instead to Washington ?

1 Reply Award Share ···

JessicaPink703 OP • 1y ago
Legal Researcher

That's not how our constitution and federalist system works. If anything, SCOTUS has expanded state sovereignty, not weakened it.

3 more replies

thespritewithin • 1y ago

Thank you for the information

MadRenee • 1y ago
Trans Pansexual

My passport expires in June 2028. Will I be forced with an AGAB marker when I need to reapply in 2027?

JessicaPink703 OP • 1y ago
Legal Researcher

If already updated, I find it highly unlikely they would automatically reverse it. If you want to take an extra precaution, put in an early renewal now.

HeckinMew • 1y ago

What about medical card certifications for truck drivers? Given both state and federal regulations I'm not quite sure how this is supposed to play out.

1 Reply Award Share ···

2 more replies

[deleted] • 1y ago

[deleted] • 1y ago

ThisMachineIsTrans • 1y ago

the state my wife and I live in allows birth cert updates, both name and gender marker. we sent in to update my wife's birth cert weeks and weeks ago but haven't gotten it in hand yet, and obviously need it to get her passport

> If you are able to amend the gender/sex on your Birth Certificate in your birth state and are not nonbinary, you are unaffected as you can apply anew

so we should be okay to wait for her amended birth cert to arrive, then get her passport?

1 Reply Award Share ···

1 more reply

TurtleRollover • 1y ago
Trans Pansexual

I don't even know how to get a passport. Can I still get one before that 60 day time?

1 Reply Award Share ···

JessicaPink703 OP • 1y ago
Legal Researcher

Website with instructions, you just need to have it expedited and do it now (be sure to check your preferred gender and the sex change box):

https://www.usa.gov/apply-adult-passport

2 Reply Award Share ···

Sundew3369 • 1y ago

I'm worried about discrimination while flying. Will the tsa be affected? Will we have to be concerned about how we present and if our gender marker match that expression?

1 Reply Award Share ···

2 more replies

Few-Grass6056 • 1y ago
Sorana | She/Her | Recently Cracked

So being the fact that I live in Florida currently, where should I move where I'd have a better chance at getting prescribed?

1 Reply Award Share ···

1 more reply

[deleted] • 1y ago

Thanks for this information girl!! I really appreciate it, I sent my passport in a month ago, and I already updated my gender with social security so this helps a lot. :)

1 Reply Award Share ···

K_sh2319 • 1y ago

I don't currently have a passport, when I get it should i mark my gender as F or M, I haven't messed with any documentation changes since my transition only started last June (mtf). My drivers license is set to expired this coming June as well. I start HRT next month and i don't know what to do

1 Reply Award Share ···

JessicaPink703 OP • 1y ago
Legal Researcher

Put Female, select the sex change box, and send in your Passport application now!

2 more replies

10inchsaucecup • 1y ago

Tysm for this 🙏 I've tried going through the comments for my specific situation to see if it's been answered and didn't, but sorry if this has already been answered. I have everything updated to male legally, but I've never gotten a passport bc it's not been affordable and I haven't needed it. I'd like to get one ASAP but idk if I could in the next 30-60 days. Since everything is male for me and I've never gotten a passport, would I have issues getting my passport to have a male gender marker?

1 Reply Award Share ···

JessicaPink703 OP • 1y ago
Legal Researcher

My suggestion would be:

(1) If you are in a state that allows gender marker changes to Birth Certificates, you are golden and don't need to act right away since later you can just use your Birth Certificate to apply for a Passport as if you are a cis woman :3

(2) If not, do the $60 Passport Card option. With it being cheaper while also providing federal proof of your gender, you will later down the line be able to just renew it to get a full Passport if you ever need one. :)

2 Reply Award Share ···

2 more replies

NorCalFrances • 1y ago

Your assessment regarding the SSA may not be completely accurate?

Your assessment regarding the SSA may not be completely accurate?

"Michelle King was named Acting Commissioner for Social Security in January 2025"

https://www.ssa.gov/agency/commissioner/#:~:text=Acting%20Commissioner%20Carolyn%20W.,Colvin also see,

President Trump Announces Acting Cabinet and Cabinet-Level Positions

https://www.hstoday.us/subject-matter-areas/federal-government/president-trump-announces-acting-cabinet-and-cabinet-level-positions/

1 Reply Award Share ···

7 more replies

someguynamedcole • 1y ago

ftm here, started transitioning right before Trump was elected the first time and I applied for my passport as male with my male name, without a gender marker change as I had never previously had a passport.

Mine expires in 2026 and the renewal form asks for previous legal names. If I left this field blank would the renewal process still find my birthname?

1 Reply Award Share ···

1 more reply

Gorklax • 1y ago

So just to confirm, if I'm in a state that let's me ammend my birth certificate, then I've got a little more time? I have a MA birth certificate where they let you ammend it after you've had a legal name change.

1 Reply Award Share ···

2 more replies

PANDA_PR1NC3SS • 1y ago

If someone already has changed their legal documents and doesn't yet have a passport, could this stop them from getting one?

1 Reply Award Share ···

1 more reply

AnotherCatgirl • 1y ago

Should I be worried about transphobic nations outside of the US which I might want to enter giving me trouble about gender marker not matching physical characteristics? It's currently easier for me to pass as my A.G.A.B. than to pass as my true gender. For passports I'm worried about border control denying me entry.

1 Reply Award Share ···

2 more replies

40DollarsUnder • 1y ago

Hell fucking yes. This is the kind of information I needed. I'm actually cautiously optimistic for the first time in months. Thank you so much.

1 Reply Award Share ···

bas1G1rl • 1y ago
Trans Homosexual

Is it possible to get Gender Affirming Care if I switch my residency to a liberal state that recognizes trans people? I have residency in Virginia but I basically live most of my life in Maryland right now. But I was born in Virginia so I'm really nervous now. God I'm in no position right now to transition right now. I'm too bound up with things with transphobic relatives. Will I be okay if I switch my residency now to a liberal state like Maryland???

1 Reply Award Share ···

5 more replies

AllisonIsReal • 1y ago
Transgender

So I just recently got my gender marker on my passport changed because my name change hearing isn't for a few months yet.

When I get the court order and submit for another new passport only changing the name. What do you think might happen?

I assume I'll be good and they won't be able to revert it back to an M, because I'll be submitting a current passport with an F but I am still a bit concerned.

Any insight you might have would be fantastic.

Thanks!

1 Reply Award Share ···

5 more replies

[deleted] • 1y ago

RemindMe! -2 days

1 Reply Award Share ···

Seradima • 1y ago

I'm going to go to the County Clerk's office this friday to get my name and gender legally changed.

I do not have a passport, and never have.

Once I do this, would I be in the clear? Would I be able to order my passport under my new legal gender and not have to worry about Trump's bullshit?

Thankfully I live in New York, where I can get my birth certificate changed very, very easily.

1 Reply Award Share ···

1 more reply

daniel22457 • 1y ago

But what if I changed my gender marker first due to timeline and want to get that changed as well am I going to be forced to revert

1 Reply Award Share ···

JessicaPink703 OP • 1y ago
Legal Researcher

As I explained in my context post, I find it unlikely they will revert binary gender marker changes, especially because if you do it within one year of getting your Passport it is a separate process altogether instead of renewal.

2 Reply Award Share ···

itsamemario19 • 1y ago

Ironically I switched my passport during trumps first term, so it expires in 2028. I was born in a dumb state that won't let me change birth certificate. I'm not sure whether to risk 3 years of a valid passport with the right gender marker to get a passport that will outlast this trump term. What would y'all do?

1 Reply Award Share ···

JessicaPink703 OP • 1y ago
Legal Researcher

The old rules are still in effect, I myself would renew via a Passport appointment for same day service and just buy a ticket to nowhere to justify it.

3 Reply Award Share ···

1 more reply

[deleted] • 1y ago

glorious_ardent • 1y ago
Trans Bisexual

I came out last may, but only really had the ball start rolling on anything transition related this month, so I've not had the chance to change any of my documents. I was born in a state that only allowed changes to my birth certificate after undergoing srs, effectively prohibiting me from changing that in the near future, and I haven't had the opportunity to change my gender marker on anything else. Would having my old gender on all my documents cause me significant enough issues where it would be worth changing what I can without changing my birth certificate? Or would it be better to have all my documents match?

1 Reply Award Share ···

1 more reply

No-Marsupial4714 • 1y ago

FtM that also followed this link from another subreddit. I don't have a copy of my passport, just a certified copy. Would I have to order myself one? How would that work if I have my name legally changed? (in regards to changing my gender marker on a passport)

1 Reply Award Share ···

[deleted] • 1y ago

[deleted] • 1y ago

I'm so glad I live in Europe!

1 Reply Award Share ···

safewordcod • 1y ago

I do not have a passport yet but I'm working on getting one. My gender marker on my permit is already M so I should be okay for the passport to say that too since I'm not technically changing anything?

1 Reply Award Share ···

ValerieMae37 • 1y ago

I have a new completely updated Birth certificate I got before the Trump administration with my new name and gender on it I need to get a passport will the correct info be on my passport?

1 Reply Award Share ···

CurbYourPipeline420 • 1y ago

My question is will it be possible to change my gender markers if I move to another country? Idk if I can even change my gender markers now as I'm not even presenting as the correct gender. I'm not even out to anybody in my family yet or at work

Skip to main content

1 Reply Award Share ···

BlackberrySecret2531 • 1y ago

I have a question I'm 20 years old. I started my transition when I was 13 years old. I have to get my passport renewed, and the gender marker on my passport was never marked female, but my name is legally changed My drivers license was changed with a female gender marker as well as my new name and so is my birth certificate if I have to get a new passport do I have to put male on it?

1 Reply Award Share ···

kinggritz • 1y ago

Thank you.

1 Reply Award Share ···

[deleted] • 1y ago • Edited 8mo ago

wlhrh • 1y ago

I have a passport with "X" and was unable to change it back to my assigned gender yesterday. I'm supposed to fly out to Switzerland for the month of February in and out of Chicago. How much trouble should I expect with border officials? I am AMAB and can easily pass as cis.

1 Reply Award Share ···

Zephyomnom • 1y ago
NB Transbian

I'm worried about updating my passport with my new name since I have X as my marker. Will I be forced to change my marker?

1 Reply Award Share ···

[deleted] • 1y ago

so just to make sure, is hormone access protected for minors by current state laws despite the recent executive order? i'm unsure if that falls under state rights as mentioned in your 5th point.

1 Reply Award Share ···

AnxietyBoySoup • 1y ago

r/MtF × Search in r/MtF

Home
Popular
Explore
All
Start a community

GAMES ON REDDIT

CUSTOM FEEDS

Create Custom Feed

RECENT

r/Sealand
r/transgender
r/MtF
r/Passports
r/Charity

COMMUNITIES

Manage Communities

Do I need to update it to female?

1 Reply Award Share ···

According_Equal_8622 • 1y ago
Asexual and ace at friendship hugs

I am a bit concerned about how this dumbass WILLING got elected, we need to follow Dr. Martin Luther King Jr's teaching and peacefully protest. I am especially worried about how people might get hurt because of this situation, and that me and my friends might not be accepted in our community.

I genuinely believe that anyone can whoever he/she/they want and can express themselves however they want. Everyone in the LGBTQ+ (or not) community remember that someone out there wants to be your friend, if not it's me. With love According_Equal_8622 ❤️

1 Reply Award Share ···

Aggravating-Fix181 • 1y ago

As a muslim, I find Trump pretty stupid (sorry for my wording, and I'm not meming.)

1 Reply Award Share ···

Stephany23232323 • 10mo ago

Thanks you for this information.

1 Reply Award Share ···

Normal-Management907 • 10mo ago

So glad I'm not in the US right now.

1 Reply Award Share ···

i1love2my3gecko4 • 9mo ago

Im just sitting here in Europe and wish i could do something as a teeneger not in us

1 Reply Award Share ···

r/ACPocketCamp